One of Trio Admits Part in the New Orleans Holdup

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Three men were arrested by a detective squad early Friday morning at Algiers on the west bank of the Mississippi river in connection with the daylight robbery of two branch banks here Thursday, in which $15,000 in cash was stolen.

About $1400 was recovered when the arrests were made and police said one of the men made a complete confession to his part in the second of Thursday's holdups.

The men arrested are Emmett Watigny, 21, Louis Bommarito, 22, and Robert Earl Lebanc, 22, all of Algiers.

Police said they obtained a confession from Watigny, giving all the details of the robbery of the Lautenschlager Market Branch of the Capital Bank and Trust Company Thursday afternoon, when $4,000 was taken after forcing the employees and customers into a vault.

The Ewing Market Branch of the same bank was held up a few hours earlier and $11,000 was stolen, but Watigny denied he and his friends were involved in the first robbery.

The Annual Melon Festival For 1931 Will Be Suspended

Decision is Reached at a Meeting on Thursday Afternoon

ACTION IS FAVORED

Many Business Men Favor Plan to Postpone the 1931 Show

The annual Watermelon Festival which has been Hope's greatest publicity factor for the last five years will be suspended this year.

The decision was reached at a meeting of the board of directors of Hope Chamber of Commerce Thursday afternoon with a committee from the Business & Professional Women's club sitting in on the meeting.

In the opinion of those present it would be unwise to attempt an undertaking of the size and cost of the Watermelon Festival this year, and rather than sacrifice the Festival's reputation by putting on an inferior show, they chose to suspend it altogether for 1931.

Questionnaires Mailed

Secretary W. Homer Pigg revealed that a questionnaire mailed out to Chamber of Commerce members last week showed a favorable vote for holding the Festival again this year—but only a fraction of the total number of ballots was returned. Mr. Pigg mailed out 130 ballots, received back 36, of which 25 voted "yes" and 11 "no."

An analysis of the ballots, however, showed that many of those voting "yes" were inactive in previous Festival organizations. Former Festival committees present at the meeting Thursday, who had refrained from voting on the general questionnaire, voted unanimously at the meeting to suspend this year's show.

It is planned by the Chamber of Commerce to substitute for the Festival a melon budget which will pay for the shipment of big watermelons this summer to each of the points in other states which sent carloads of truck produce and other food to Hempstead county during the drought relief program last winter.

Horseshoer Worried Over Outlook of Trade

TORONTO, Ont.—(AP)—The question of what will become of the horses when there is no one left to look after their feet, is bothering Sam Hooper. Sam, as you might guess, is—or rather, was—a horseshoer.

A few days ago, 50 years to the day when he first started to work as an apprentice horseshoer, he pounded in the last nail in the last shoe for the last horse he ever will fit with new foot-gear.

"Fifty years is long enough," he remarked as he dropped his hammer.

The Inventor's Power

EUROPEAN royalty seems to like American automobiles. Prince Charles of Belgium, visiting America, plans to make the Ford plant one of the major items in his list of things to be examined. Ex-King Alfonso of Spain is supposed to have in the back of his head a plan for coming to America and studying automobile-manufacturing intensively. Prince Nicholas of Rumania found Detroit the most interesting place in America on his last visit here.

All of this is only natural, perhaps, since American automobiles are very good cars, and American automobile factories are extremely interesting places. Besides, an interest in things mechanical is one of the prerogatives of royalty. Louis XVI of France, who lost his head in the revolution, was an expert lock maker. Small Michael of Rumania has a machine shop in his palace. Complicated gadgets see into have some special affinity for kings.

More interesting, however, is the way in which the monarchial-automotive tieup represents a mingling of new and old. The automobile is the very symbol of the modern era; the king is an anachronism, as Alfonso can testify. By their interest in motor cars, the kings are recognizing the mechanical forces which are sweeping them out of existence.

The part that has been played by mechanical devices in the development of modern civilization is generally overlooked.

It was gunpowder and the musket that ended the age of chivalry, by giving the man on foot a weapon that made him the peer of the man on horseback.

It was the compass that enabled the old mariners of Spain, Portugal, England and Holland to explore the world and open up new trade routes and new areas for colonization.

It was the steam engine that made it possible for the nations to exploit these trade routes and settle these colonial areas; the steamship that brought distant lands close to the exporting centers, the steam-driven factory that gave the steamship its cargoes.

Another mechanical device, the printing press, made possible the intellectual progress of the last five centuries, brought the American and French revolutions into existence and made democracy possible.

Now, today, it is the automobile that has flavored the civilization of the United States and has thrown a new factor into all of the currents of the old world.

After all, our fates lie pretty largely in the hands of our mechanics and inventors. If Gutenberg, Watts and the rest had not lived, the divine right of kings would stand today about as it stood 600 years ago. The kings of Europe, coming to America to look at automobiles, might salute the newest member of that group of mechanical devices that has de-throned them.

The Great Illuminator Illumes

FIVE men prominently connected with the failure of the American Exchange Bank, the failure of which in Little Rock last November, carried more than fifty small state banks down with it, have been indicted by a grand jury in Little Rock.

The Little Rock Gazette, great moral and religious illuminator, did finally put the news on the front page.

When A. B. Banks was indicted in Osceola, the Gazette, which had so often referred to him as the outstanding banker of the commonwealth, didn't think it was much news, and used a short story on an inside page. Universally the smaller press of the state considered the movement to bring these bank wreckers into the courts, as front page news, with real headlines.

If Arkansas had permitted these bank wreckers to escape without facing trials in the courts, it would have been an invitation in the future for others to wreck every financial institution in the commonwealth for their own selfish gain.

We have contended all along that it wasn't the drought of 1930 that made the long bread lines in Arkansas, and that made Arkansas poverty become flaunted to the world, but that it was the bank failures, occasioned by the big Little Rock bank juggling the funds of its own and of more than 50 small state banking connections.

We have always said that no honest administration of any bank would bring its assets to 10 per cent. Banks are insolvent when they can not pay out dollar for dollar. When they can't pay 50 cents on the dollar they are wrecked. When they have only 10 per cent of assets left, they have been robbed.—Hot Springs Sentinel-Record.

Make Friends Don't Drive Them Away

THE individual is unfortunate who has a hair trigger disposition and a tendency to carry his feelings around in an exposed fashion where they are sure to be hurt or offended. He is always sure to imagine someone is imposing on him. In contrast to this individual is the fellow with the happy disposition who is not always ready to believe that every careless remark or action is meant as a slight and who can give and take in the spirit of a good fellow. The latter never wants for friends.—Minden (La.) Signal-Tribune.

The Spring Overhaul!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Three senators are going abroad to study the silver situation and add to a great mass of information and opinion which has been poured out in statements, official reports and erudite articles—none of which has prevented the price of silver from going down below 30 cents an ounce.

In February, at about the time silver was falling below 26 cents after previously declining from 69 cents in 1925 to 46 cents in 1930, the Senate adopted the resolution of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada which asked President Hoover to negotiate with foreign governments with a view to stopping government sales of silver and to promote an international conference to achieve agreements or understandings "with respect to the uses and status of silver as money."

Conference Not Called

No conference has been called, but the administration is actively interested in silver, along with statesmen, fiscal experts, economists and business men over the world. The subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which will now be interviewing foreign leaders consists of Pittman, Swanson of Virginia and Shipstead of Minnesota.

The important phases of the international silver depression, which have stirred up general interest in and discussion about the metal for the first time since the famous Bryan "free silver" campaign of 1896, involve the prosperity of India and China and the effect of low silver prices on exports to those countries, the effect on the mining industry in this country and other countries where Americans may or may not have large mining investments and the aggregate effect which most experts agree has been an important factor in the worldwide business depression of the last year or two.

Many Countries Affected

Silver is not the only depressing factor, but the great amount of study and discussion devoted to it is attributable to the fact that our own silver producing states are vitally affected, half a dozen important countries in Asia and the Americas which either hoard or produce silver are involved and many authorities seem to believe that something can be done about the white metal which will stimulate prosperity's return.

This is probably the shortest article ever written about silver, but some of the main facts may be pointed out as follows: The total world loss on silver supplies, with its accompanying bad psychological effects, will approach two and a half billion dollars, a decrease of more than half within 15 months. That meant about $1,300,000,000 to the people of India and about $800,000,000 to the Chinese. Our exports to China have decreased rapidly. China operates on a silver standard, the value of her currency depending on silver prices. India's people, although on a gold basis, hoard silver in vast quantities as a form of saving. Mexico, the largest silver producing country, has been hard hit because silver is among her most important exports; her two-year suspension of payments to holders of her external bonds was partly attributable to the silver decline.

Treasury Lost 100 Million

The U. S. treasury lost $100,000,000 on its silver reserves.

Governor Montagu Norman of the Bank of England and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon are said to have discussed silver at their recent meeting here, but no suggestion or proposal has been forthcoming as a result. Both the United States and Great Britain are understood to be willing to enter an international silver conference, but apparently neither country intends to call one.

Various proposals for government action here and abroad have not been getting anywhere because they are not convincingly sound or advantageous from the standpoint of those requested to act. Most of them involve some form of price fixing.

DeMolay Mother Chapter to Sponsor World Tour

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—The mother chapter of the Order of DeMolay here will sponsor a world tour of members and other persons from all parts of the country this summer. The climax of the tour will be a ceremony in Paris, where the DeMolays will place a bronze wreath on the tomb of Jacques DeMolay for whom the order was named. The party will sail from Montreal July 4. England, Holland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Italy, Switzerland and France are included in the itinerary.

Pee-Wee Golf Banned For Fascist Students

ROME.—(U.P.)—Fascist university young men have been forbidden to indulge in all "miniature, or table games, with exotic names and ridiculous titles such as ping pong, Tom Thumb, or Pony Golf, table football, etc.

Such games are condemned as being unworthy and undignified. "Fascist college boys," says the circular, "must give an example of sporting spirit and daring in the open air without following the snobbish exhibition of lounge lizards."

Five German Towns to Celebrate 600th Birthday

BERLIN.—(U.P.)—Five German towns will observe their 600th anniversaries this year. They are: Bad Tolz in Upper Bavaria; Roessels, Frey, Stadt, in East Prussia; Dannenfelds in the Rhenish Pfalz; and Griefenberg near Nuremberg. Bad Warmbrunn in Silesia and Bad Schoenflies celebrate 600 years of existence, while Bayreuth, home of Wagner, is 700 years old as an incorporated town.

El Paso Plans Golden Jubilee

EL PASO, Tex.—(U.P.)—The date that the first "iron horse" steamed into the straggling little village that was El Paso has been selected for the observance of El Paso's golden anniversary.

May 19, 1881, the first locomotive came into El Paso, and on May 19 this year, a great jubilee will be staged.

Civic clubs, railroads, banks and other business organizations that have golden anniversaries this year will participate.

More than 25,000 visitors are expected from El Paso's trade territory in contrast to the handful of 100—then considered a great crowd—that cheered the first locomotive in 1881.

A parade that will depict the growth of El Paso in the desert from a group of adobe houses to a modern city will be one of the features.

The Southern Pacific, the first railroad to enter El Paso, will have some old type trains here for the celebration. The Texas and Pacific railroad also will participate, although it did not make its rail connection with this city until 1882.

Navajo Sand Painting Preserved For Museum

TUCSON, Ariz.—(U.P.)—A Navajo Indian sand painting, said to be the only one in existence, in attracting many spectators at the University of Arizona museum here.

Members of the Navajo tribe achieve beautiful productions of natural scenes by strewn colored sand on light sifted sand but they are destroyed before sundown each night.

The picture for the museum was obtained by Mrs. John Weatherall, who spent most of her girlhood around the Navajo Indians. It was after much effort that a painter was persuaded to come to the museum and prepare the painting as he, in common with other members of the tribe, believe that permitting the Sun to set on a painting will bring sickness to the clan.

New Precious Metals Mine Believed Found

OKEMAH, Okla.—(U.P.)—Gold and silver, believed to be in paying quantities, have been discovered near here. The gold-bearing quartz is deposited about 23 feet under the surface. Traces of platinum and iron also were found in the ore. Laboratory tests are to be made to determine advisability of mining the metals.

Who knows but that the rose may suffer pain? Her day, like ours, is a mixed of sun and rain. Could we but offer beauty for an hour. Perhaps, like her, we should not live in vain. ## German Uses Wings For Skiing Speed

BERLIN.—(U.P.)—Skiing with wings is the latest thrill claimed to have been perfected by Joseph Krupp, young engineer of Vienna. Krupp attains a considerable speed on skis alone before he opens his wings, which are attached to his arms. His body stretches back into a line parallel with the ground, and he controls his rise or fall by the angle at which he holds his arms. To descend, he dips one wing, and to halt his descent, he straightens the wing out again. His equipment can be packed into a long sack with the skis, about the size of a folding boat.

State Meet 10 Years Ago Staged in Hope

Boys Who Were Later to Become Famous College and Professional Stars Visited Here When This City Entertained 255 Athletes and Thousands of Visitors

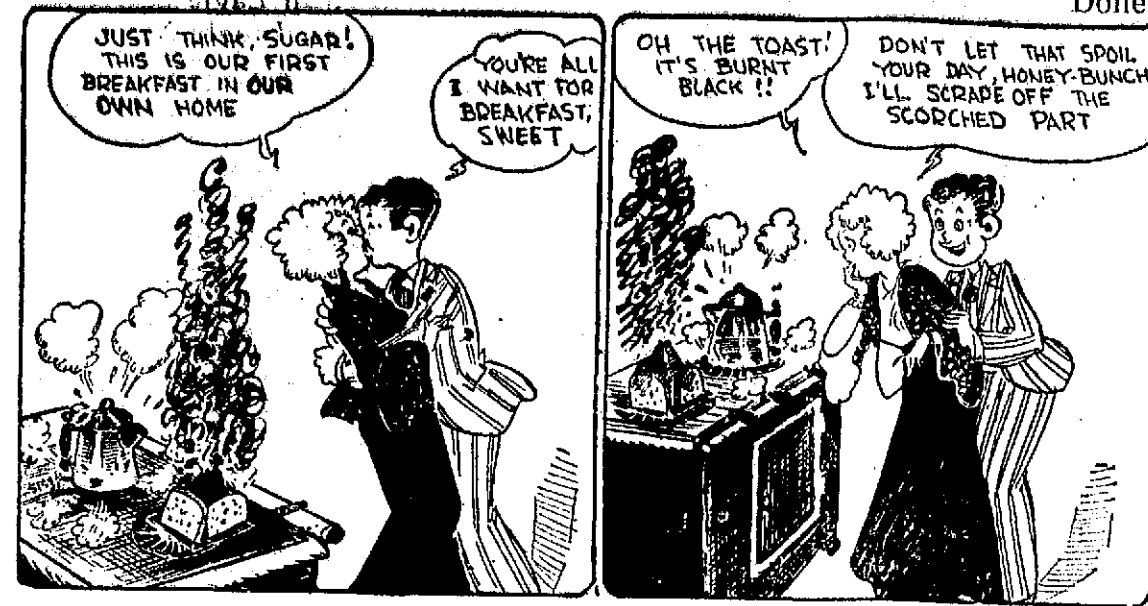

By JIM MONTGOMERY

A Georgia Tech football captain with the most valuable baseball player in the National League, an Olympic track star, and another great grid hero of the South once gave a public exhibition in Hope which is well remembered by many South Arkansas sports fans.

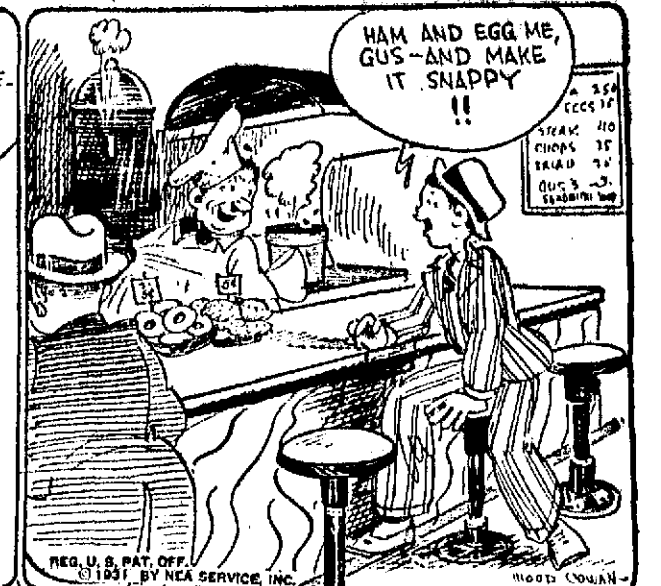

These national heroes—and a score of Arkansas favorites—competed at the Southwest Arkansas Fair Grounds this city, 10 years ago, at which time, however, they were mere high school boys with the zenith of their great careers still a few years ahead.

Before college towns of Arkansas began to monopolize every big high school athletic event, Hope was widely known as perhaps the best "track meet" city in the state. A decade ago the excellent half-mile dirt track at the fair grounds was superior to any oval in Arkansas, and only recently has it been surpassed by the circular paths in college stadiums at Clarksville, Hope made a successful bid for the state high school athletic and literary meet in 1921, the event attracting 255 athletes and thousands of other visitors. Even the state college

Now—the "Armchair Parachute"

It's "as easy as falling off a log" to use this nifty new "armchair parachute" for passengers in cabin airplanes. The chute is attached to the seat and all the wearer needs to do is jump from the plane when danger threatens and float to earth in a sitting posture—at least, that's the theory. Josephine Forbes is shown above as she demonstrated the new device at the National Aircraft Show at Detroit.

Legislature Finds Ideal Methods for Fund Raising

HELENA, Mont.—(UP)—The Montana legislature has found an ideal method of raising funds from the sale of fishing licenses.

The boy who became captain of Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado was known as plain "Number 14" to Hope people who witnessed the meet. He was Ivan Williams of Little Rock, who led Tech in 1926. Listed just above Williams as entry Number 143 was Doug Wycoff, his team mate who accompanied him to the Georgia school and became one of the South's greatest fullbacks. "Prince," as Wycoff was known, made the All-Southern backfield for three years and was placed on several All-American football teams.

Travis Jackson of Waldo was the youth who was to become the National League's most valuable player. Jackson proved a terror to Hope High school track teams before entering professional baseball, once winning the district meet for Waldo practically single-handed. As early as 1921, however, the captain of the New York Giants was well known to many Hope people, as he had played baseball for both Waldo and Lewisville.

Although Jackson was to become one of the world's best players, he was such a youngster back in those days that he spent much of his time on the bench, not even being considered experienced enough to face the old Hope Storks. It must be remembered, however, that the Storks of that time, which were managed by the late W. Y. Foster, Jr., were a famous outfit and won the independent championship of Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Herman Bagby The Olympic star who ran on the Hope track ten years ago was Herman Bagby, the Lake Village whirlwind who set a record in the 440 yard dash that still stands. Bagby's fast time has survived nine other state meets probably because of the fact that the Hope track, being a half-mile circle, has fewer turns in its 440 layout than do the other tracks which are only quarter-mile affairs.

Bagby later left Lake Village and starred in football and track with the famous Pine Bluff Zebras. In 1924, his sophomore year at the University of Arkansas, he won a place on the United States Olympic team as a contestant in the deathly events and accompanied the Americans to the Paris games.

Nineteen Hope high athletes of the early 1920's were entered in the meet. Most of them no longer reside here, but are still well remembered.

Gus Bowden was the outstanding Bobcat performer of the day, winning first place in one of the hurdle events and placing in other contests to score most of Hope's 12 points. Earl O'Neal placed in the pole vault.

Other members of the Bobcat third-clad squad were: Charles Bridgwell, Ernest Duncan, Wilbur Holcomb, John Holt, Otis Imboden, Art Jordan, Selby Kennedy, Fred Laster, Coulter Lipscomb, Charles Lowthorp, Lyle Moore, Sims Ridgill, Charles Rounton, Vern Schooley, Clarence Talbert, Dave Thompson, and Willie Warren. A few of these much had younger brothers who later "carried on" for the Red and White.

Besides Williams and Wycoff, future Georgia Tech stars, Little Rock's championship team boasted of Dick Bright, later with Little Rock College; Red Felix, who set a record in the hurdles; Kirkwood, one of the meet's high scorers, and Sprick, whose younger brother is still winning points for Coach Quigley's men.

Two From Nashville Nashville had two men who later became college football captains—John Adams of Henderson-Brown and Gary Dildy of Ouchita. Present's mainstay was Homer Graham, grid captain at Ouchita in 1927 and also a fine college dash man. Curtis Pullig, who as dean of men at Ouchita has made many friends in Hope, was at the '21 meet, vaulting for Waldo High. Pullig later set state records in both the high school and college pole vaults, but they no longer stand. Another Waldo athlete in the meet was Earl Tye, who became coach at Ashdown after attending Hendrix.

Paragould's representatives at Hope included four men who were to become college stars. Two of them, Derry and Futrell, won letters at the University of Arkansas. "Bozo" Derry became involved in a theft, but was

SHOULDERS AND LIMBS ACHED

Poisons Absorbed In Cases of Constipation Sometimes Cause of Pains.

When aches and pains are due to poisons being absorbed into the system because of faulty elimination, the use of Theodor's Black-Draught often proves of valuable assistance.

Mrs. Little James, of Columbia, Ky., describes a disagreeable condition which she suffered several years ago.

"I had an aching in my shoulders and limbs," she says. "Sometimes I would have a queer ache in my head. I began to take Theodor's Black-Draught for this trouble, and found it helped me very much. I felt so much better after I had taken a course of it."

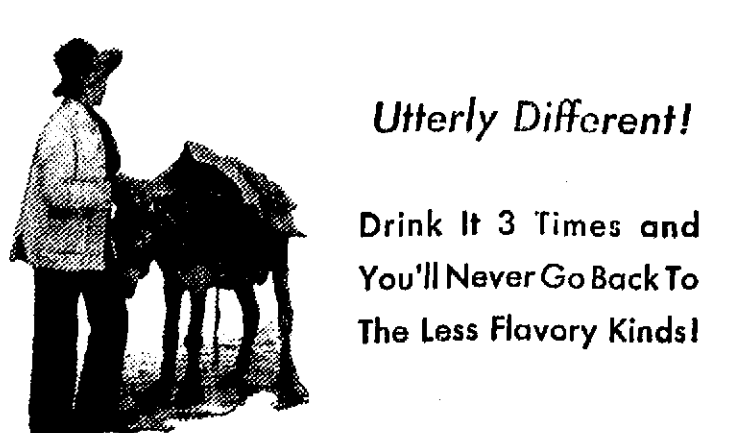

"Black-Draught is very good to take for constipation and biliousness. I also think it is good for indigestion and gas on the stomach. Sometimes I make a tea of it and take it in that way. I have given it, in a tea, to my children (as a laxative) for bad colds, and find it very helpful."

"I can recommend Black-Draught as a good medicine for after several years of using it I have always found it reliable."

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by William Braucher

Will Mac Make It?

BOBBY JONES is the greatest golfer who ever won the National Open. By the same token Macdonald Smith of the Carnoustie Smiths is the greatest golfer who never did.

Twenty-one years ago his star blazed brightly on the fairways for the first time. That was in the National Open at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, when his brother George introduced him to championship golf only to see still another of the famous brothers, Alex, win a three-cornered playoff between Alex, Mac and J. J. McDermott.

How He Fought

WHAT a fighter Mac Smith was then! The first thirty-six holes of the tournament saw Alex with 146 and Mac with 152. McDermott was between them with 148. In the third round McDermott marked down a 75, giving him 223. Alex came in with a 79 and Mac, coming from behind, scored a 75, making their scores 225 and 227.

Four strokes behind McDermott as the last round started, Mac Smith gave one of the finest demonstrations of fighting from behind that has been seen in the national tournaments. McDermott came in with a 75, wrote down his final score as 298 and sat back to see if they could beat that. Along came Alex, with a half-raising 73, throwing the affair into a tie.

Then came Mac, clicking birdies and eagles with the smooth precision of a machine, to score a brilliant 71 and make it 298-all.

Disappointment

IN the playoff, Alex simply could not be beaten. He played his best round, scoring a 71. McDermott shot a 75, and Mac came in weary, nervous-shaken and disconsolate with a 77.

But he showed fighting qualities in that tournament that have made him a dangerous threat in every big event since then. Even last year, in the final round at Interlachen, he started cutting into Jones' figures in such an amazing way, that the Georgian's supporters became alarmed. Starting seven strokes behind Jones in the last round, he came to within a couple of strokes of the Georgian's final

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

MOE BERG, the kosher catcher sent to Cleveland by the White Sox, is one of baseball's most erudite men not only does he speak seven languages, but he can signal in five of them. It is a legend that Ted Lyons and Tommy Thayer never were known to "shake him off" . . . that being the term to describe a pitcher's objection to the kind of ball the catcher calls for . . . he is a graduate of Princeton . . . and post-graduate of the Sorbonne in Paris . . . not only can he speak French, Spanish, English, German, etc., but he is fluent in the kind of low-American used in conversation with umpires . . . If Cleveland discovers before June that it wants to keep Moe, General Manager Billy Evans will send Mr. Comiskey a check for 15 grand.

score, and the Jones gallery sighed with relief after Mac sank his final putt and Jones was safe.

They said 20 years ago that it would not be long before Mac Smith became National Open champion. But he never was. The 1925 tournament at Prestwick is characteristic of his experience. He held a comfortable lead and could have won easily by shooting par golf.

The gallery suddenly became unmanageable and stampeded in his path. His game cracked. Time and again when it seemed his chances were bright, some little bad break came along and upset his shots.

One More Effort

NOW he is at Carnoustie, playing daily over the course where he held this summer. Weeks ago he left his job at Great Neck, L. I., determined to make one more great effort to gain a national title.

Those who remember how the fates have fooled him so often are watching him and hoping that Mac finally will fool them back. He is a fighter still, just as he was in his first tournament 21 years ago, still coming from behind with new hope.

THE MELODY GIRL

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

AUTHOR OF
"The Husband Hunter," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BERYL BORDEN discovers that her half-sister, Irene, is planning to elope with Tommy Wilson. She tries to prevent the marriage by kidnapping Tommy with the assistance of her neighborhood "gang."

"They capture him on the eve of the elopement and drive him out to the country where Beryl urges him to continue in college and not break the heart of his adoring aunt, Mrs. Hoffman, who is financing him. Beryl calls him a 'snip' and takes him back to her place. Irene, enraged at the loss, refuses to listen to Tommy's explanation and postpones the elopement. Beryl, however, carries his suitcase home and hides it on the porch as his aunt meets him at the door."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He slipped quietly down the stairs and out to the front porch.

"GOING fishing with your uncle?" Mrs. Hoffman asked Tommy.

"Not if I can help it," he said determinedly. "Just going down for some ice water."

"Tommy Wilson, you haven't been drinking!"

"Oh, Aunt Em, does everything always have to be according to rule?"

"I didn't really think you had," his aunt answered with a touch of abashment. "I'll go down and fix the ice water for you."

Tommy did not object, and she moved on, her heavy figure in the gray dressing gown grotesquely resembling a giant penguin. When he figured she had reached the kitchen, he slipped quietly down the stairs and out to the front porch.

He was on his way back to the front door, his suitcase in his hand, when a hail from the neighboring garden brought him to a halt.

"Hey, Tommy," a shrill voice called. "Come on our picnic!"

Tommy did not stay to hear more. He hurried back upstairs and shoved the suitcase under the bed. A few minutes later his aunt called up from the lower hall: "Tommy, Michael's here and wants to know if you're going on the picnic?"

Tommy stuck his head out of his door and called back: "No, I'm not, I'm."

"You're going with me," his Uncle George put in, emerging partially from the bathroom. "Seeing you're awake you've got no excuse now."

Tommy had his choice, or thought he had, and he certainly wasn't going on any picnic (that was personally conducted by Beryl Borden).

"I'm going with Uncle George," he decided down to his aunt.

HE dressed hurriedly, thinking he might escape both invitations, but his uncle, guessing his intention, cornered him as he was trying to leave the house and dragged him into the kitchen.

His aunt fed him with special care. "The poor boy looks all fagged out," she remarked sympathetically to no one in particular. "Wouldn't you like some spiced pears, Tommy? I've got a jar or two left from last year."

Spiced pears Tommy liked especially. "All right," he said, not ferreting a favor upon her.

"Hurry up," his uncle urged as he dawdled over a third helping of the fruit; "there's more important things in life than pears."

"Don't I know?" Tommy murmured.

"I'm not, it don't look like it. Come on, it's time to go."

Tommy got up with a sigh. "Save the rest of them for dinner," he said to Aunt Emma, indicating the remainder of the pears.

"Not worth bothering with," his

"Is that so?" his uncle asked with a touch of real anxiety. "Why I thought... her mother was over to the theater last night, looking for you, and she said Irene was going away for a while. I thought it was all right when I met Beryl."

"Where'd you meet her?" Tommy asked skeptically.

"At the drug store. I went in for a soda."

"Must have been pretty late," Tommy pursued. "She was at home when I left there last night and that wasn't early."

"Sure it was late. She was getting something for her mother; said she had hysteria, but she looked like she needed something for herself."

"H'm, she made a quick recovery," Tommy retorted, looking over toward Beryl, who was herding her picnic group into lazier space in the old car. Of course he could not see the shadows under her eyes, or that the color which was usually hers naturally today was from the rouge pot. She was laughing, and bantering her gang with her customary light-heartedness, which seemed to Tommy in his present mood of bitterness toward her like an especially vile form of grossness.

"Come on," she called to them. "My kids will be getting hungry before you've got your hooks baited."

BERYL insisted upon driving and Tommy had to sit squeezed in between her and his uncle.

"If a cop sees you," he warned hopefully, "you'll get a ticket for this overcrowding."

"I know every cop on Long Island by his first name," Beryl boasted, and Tommy said, "I dare say you do."

They arrived finally, somewhat confused as to the proper ownership of various assorted arms and legs, at the beach, and piled out according to their respective fitness.

Beryl watched Tommy and his uncle take off for their fishing with genuine longing in her shadowed eyes. She loved fishing, but she couldn't leave her gang—that was her promise to their mothers.

They needed her supervision, for they were "rare" to go, as they informed her.

"If you want to do something, dig into the depths of Pride of the Sea and get that stove assembled," she directed them. "We're going to have fish."

"Maybe," Pigmy grunted.

They bustled themselves with the stove and fuel, with digging a deep hole in the sand to keep the watermelon and bottled drinking water cool, with getting kites in working order, and various other occupations, until one of the number cut his foot on a piece of broken glass. Then they all stood around while Beryl gave first aid to the injured—all but Angie, the youngest boy.

Angie, who had been eyeing the water with infinite craving for its refreshing coolness, thought it a good time—with everyone busy—to fulfill his wish. He wasn't the least bit interested in what was going on where Miss Beryl was—too often it was work. The water was fun.

He waded out until the water was up to his waist. Then he started to swim. He wasn't a bad swimmer for his age—eight—but what he hadn't seen, far out, and rapidly coming nearer was what some people call a water kitty. Undreaming of his danger, he swam straight for it.

Smarter Than Amateurs

GREEN BAY, Wis.—(AP)—Professionals play smarter football than college men. Coach Harry G. Kipke of the University of Michigan declared in a speech here in which he lauded the Green Bay Packers, national professional champions.

"The professional player has learned how to conserve his energy and use it when he needs it," Kipke said. "The plays used by most professionals are far advanced over those of most colleges. Strategy plays a more important part in professional football."

"If I could sign up some of the Packers for Michigan next year, I would guarantee a Big Ten championship for Ann Arbor."

'No Corn-No Credit' Rule

Makes Farmers Diversify

SALUDA, S. C.—(AP)—If farmers here expect to borrow money from the bank, they've got to raise corn.

The bankers have laid down the law, "no corn—no credit." The rule was passed a year ago by Col. B. W. Crouch, Saluda banker, with reference to agricultural loans.

The policy was adopted, he said, "after a study which revealed the fact that practically two-thirds of the money that banks had been lending farmers was spent for flour, meal, lard, corn and feed—such things as the farmers could raise themselves."

Other banks have adopted Colonel Crouch's policy with the result that South Carolina farmers are practicing more diversified farming.

American Eagle Will Be Taught Falconry

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A famous lecturer and naturalist, Capt. C. W. R. Knight, sailed for his home in England recently, taking with him an American bald eagle, which is to be initiated into the royal and ancient sport of falconry.

The bird, christened Miss America, was obtained from Dr. William E. Mann, director of the zoo here. Capt. Knight plans to tame Miss America and then conduct experiments to determine the extent to which an eagle will submit to falconry.

He said falconry is being revived in England. Hawks ordinarily are employed in the sport.

Reno Arms to Combat Invasion of Gangsters

RENO, (AP)—Reno—being the biggest little city in the world in every respect, is preparing to offset the menace of gangsters.

Sheriff Russell Trathen requested authorities to purchase a machine gun or two at a recent meeting of the Washoe county board. Commissioner J. C. Durham asked what weapons the "best" gangsters are using. He was informed that Thompson's short range guns are best for work in town, while long range Colts are highly efficient for hill use.

County Clerk E. H. Beemer decided that the county should have both types. It was so ordered. The guns will cost $250 to $300 each.

Illinois Cattleman Sign Pact For Feed Economy

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(AP)—Continued low livestock markets have convinced Illinois cattlemen that if they cannot get a higher price for their steers they will have to try for profits by reducing feed costs.

More than 400 of them have signed an honor roll to practice economy in their choice of feeds. Legume hay and pasture will be supplemented with feeds having a low cost for each pound of protein.

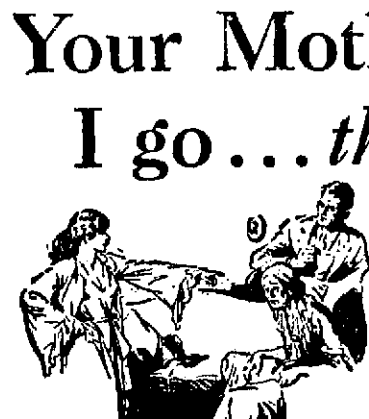

E. T. Robbins, University of Illinois, estimates the program will save from $9.50 to $10 on each steer.

Lone Cab Driver Greets Alfonso

Arriving as unobtrusively as an ordinary traveler, Alfonso XIII—a king without a kingdom—is shown in this Hope Star-NEA Service photo as he stepped alone from a rather dilapidated public taxi cab to enter a hotel in Madrid, Spain. The deposed Spanish monarch had just debarked from the cruiser Principe Alfonso, which whisked him from Spain and landed him almost unnoticed on French soil. Note the lines furrowing the former ruler's face, evidence of the tense weeks which preceded his abdication. The bleak scene here gave no indication of the wildly enthusiastic reception which he was to receive in Paris a few hours later.

Insect Remedies Are Offered by Station

Formulas Announced For Control of Truck Crop Pests

Because of the late spring, insect damage has caused growers considerable concern. The following are simple formulas which probably can be used to advantage, states G. W. Ware, assistant director, in charge of the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station:

Potato Bugs

The Colorado potato beetle attacks Irish potatoes, tomatoes and other crops under certain conditions. It can be controlled by dusting with a mixture of one part of calcium or lead arsenate to three parts of hydrated (air slacked) lime. The same results can be obtained by using one part of Paris green to twenty parts of lime. If a liquid poison is preferred, use one pound of Paris green and three pounds of lime to one hundred gallons of water, or two or three pounds of lead arsenate to one hundred gallons of water. Usually two or three applications of poison should be applied at short intervals, when the first small bugs appear.

Plant Lice

Plant lice attack most all kinds of plants. They are small, sucking insects, and can not be eradicated with poison as are the biting insects. Liquid nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40) at the rate of one part to one thousand parts of water, is satisfactory in most cases.

Cut Worms

Cut worms can be effectively held in check with poisoned bait. This is picture at the Saenger Theatre Friday night. "Big Money" is a great bit of entertainment full of constant suspense. It shows outstanding direction, artistic sets, all around good work by a superb cast and some of the best timed gags ever heard. Every scene is filled to the last degree with tension. "Big Money" carries a moral without being preachy and should please any audience. In addition to this great picture, the management has secured for this date the Los Angeles Vaudeville Revue, a Public stage show that is playing from coast to coast. Featured in this Revue are some of the best talent of the stage. It is made up of eight great vaudeville acts and lists among its personnel twenty-four stars.

made by mixing a pound of Paris green with twenty-five pounds of bran or middlings, one gallon of water and one-half gallon of cheap molasses. In potatoes, field, and closely planted crops, a tablespoonful of this should be put every three feet in the row. For tomatoes, a spoonful should be put around each plant. This material should be applied in the afternoon.

Cucumber Beetles
The black and yellow striped beetle which feeds upon young cucumbers, watermelons, cantaloupes, and other cucurbit plants, in the spring, is a very injurious insect. Control measures are difficult. Ordinary potato bug dust mixtures repel the insects to some extent, but this method cannot be relied upon when the bugs are
